5 Choose the correct words.

In 2009, 17-year-old Kevin Terris embarrassed two professional palaeontologists. How did he do that to the two 'dinosaur hunters'? Well, he built / located / destroyed the bones of a rare dinosaur just a few days after the two men had walked right past them! While on a school trip organized by the same palaeontologists, Kevin saw a bit of bone partly (1) hidden / unearthed / displayed in a piece of rock. When he and one of the palaeontologists (2) restored / renovated / examined it, they realized it was from the head of a dinosaur. For the next four years, the rest of the dinosaur was (3) destroyed / excavated / renovated and (4) removed / built / restored from where it had been (5) uncovered / buried / examined for so many years. 'Joe', as people like to call the dinosaur, is now (6) displayed / buried / built in the Alf Museum in California.
